

28TH ANNUAL CLERGY INSTITUTE & SCHOLAR IN RESIDENCE APRIL 3, 4 & 5

Rabbi Michael Cook Presents

“Jewish Views of Jesus: Yesterday, Today, and into Tomorrow – and Why These Matter for the Future of Christian-Jewish Relations”

Thursday, April 3, 2008 • 10:00 A.M. - 2:00 P.M.

Temple De Hirsch Sinai, Seattle, Washington

Most Jews are wary of, even intimidated by, the New Testament. Yet most Christians would be astonished at how anyone could be alienated from their sacred scripture. Can we explain how these circumstances developed, and offer new ways of reaching the heart of these problems?

For the Jewish community, the sole promising approach -- never before tried and now blueprinted for them in unprecedented detail -- is learning how to detect what are here coined “Gospel Dynamics,” and then how to explain these to themselves, their children, Christian friends and a broader Christian society. Only by so doing will Jews ever substantially enhance their inner sense of well-being in a Christian environment.
